Description of the Event : On 24-08-2024, NSS volunteers from the Data Science Department conducted an awareness program on Good Touch and Bad Touch at Yellampet Government School. The session focused on educating children about personal safety and boundaries in a simple, age-appropriate manner. Through interactive discussions and role-play activities, students were helped to clearly understand the difference between safe and unsafe touch. The program created a supportive environment where children felt comfortable sharing their thoughts and concerns. Emphasis was placed on building self-confidence and encouraging students to report uncomfortable situations to trusted adults, thereby empowering them to protect themselves and promote a culture of safety and mutual respect.
